

The Texas A&M Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory, a global leader in providing innovative and state of the art veterinary diagnostic services, is looking for an experienced veterinary professional to serve as the resident director for the agency's beautiful full service laboratory in Canyon.

The Canyon laboratory opened in September 2020 and is located on the campus of West Texas A&M University in the vibrant panhandle region of Texas. This facility has a diverse large animal and small animal caseload. Testing services offered on site include bacteriology, serology, virology, pathology, and molecular diagnostics. The resident director is responsible for daily and future oversight of the laboratory's operations, including budgetary matters, routine testing, test development, client communications, quality assurance, safety, and employee well-being, and developing and maintaining positive working relationships with veterinary practitioners, animal industry associations, and livestock and pet owners.

The Canyon resident director reports to TVMDL agency headquarters in College Station, Texas, serves on the TVMDL Executive Committee, and works cooperatively with other agency leadership, ensuring the four TVMDL laboratory locations function as one unit by promoting good communication and interrelationships. The resident director ensures effective supervision, management and leadership of all Canyon section staff and operations, leads by example to ensure procedures and protocols are carried out in accordance with agency policies and SOPs, and fosters teamwork, cooperation, and high professional standards in order to provide excellent customer service to laboratory clients.
